CONTENTS

List of illustrations ix
List of figures xi
Preface and acknowledgements xvi
Family trees of the houses of France, Anjou, Brittany and Burgundy xviii

Introduction 1

Part I Gender, agency and the interpretation of material culture 23
1 The situational eye: viewing, gender and response in the later middle ages 25
2 De conceptione ad partum: saints, treatises and prayers for successful childbirth 44
3 The lying-in month and the rite of churching: post-partum rituals and the material culture of childbearing 76

Part II Manuscript case studies from the houses of Anjou, Brittany and France 111
4 Holy mothers, sainted monarchs and beata stirps: the Fitzwilliam Hours and Books of Hours for the house of Anjou 113
5 Steriles fecundas fecisti: viewing and reading holy motherhood in the manuscripts of four duchesses of Brittany 199

Conclusion 248

Appendix I: prayer and translation from the Hours of Marguerite of Foix 257
Appendix II: prayer and translation from the Prayer Book of Anne of Brittany  260
Bibliography  263
Index  275